To Whom It May Concern,

Re: Product Change: Ambersil Acrylic Paints

As part of our product development process; we sometimes identify a product attribute, a manufacturing process or a technical aspect that can be improved. When such an improvement occurs, it can necessitate a product update – such as greater performance (product), change in fill size (manufacturing), or text and label changes (technical).

Such a change has occurred and affects all Ambersil Acrylic Paints. The paints have always had a “safety ring” under the button but now this must be levered out using a flat headed screwdriver. This change is being phased in, so some Ambersil Acrylic Paints will have a “loose” safety ring which may be tipped out; others will have the new version.

Should you receive customer enquires regarding the paint not spraying, please check to ensure this safety ring has been removed.

Yours faithfully,

Kieran Neale
